ISS Romania

ISS Romania teams have accumulated thousands of kilometers monitoring the borders back and forth in the last 4 weeks. It is believed that 596,000 people have crossed the border so far and around 5000 have asked for asylum. Most refugees are staying in hotels or are accommodated in private homes with host families; they are allowed to stay in Romania without the obligation of requesting a refugee or asylum seeker status. If the war continues and in time the real situation will unfold, and it will be known many of those populations will request an official help from the Romanian government. ISS Romania and while monitoring closely the border their greatest concern in this tragedy is that they see an enabling situation for human trafficking, and they noticed some suspicious cases. ISS Romania is believes that their border monitoring is preventing a real risk for victims to fall into a network of exploitation.
